To perpetuate and preserve in permanent form the records of the deeds and courage of our dear departed ones, who spon, worked and toiled; whose busy hands changed a trackless wilderness and Virgin land into fertile fields, whose patriotism gave the best of their lives and their substance for the defense of their country; that their descendants, who are enjoying the legacies handed down to them, may not forget the history of their homes with all their sacred memories; this pamphlet was written.

Descendants

of

John Current      m.      Elizabeth Amos Bourbon County, Kentucky

At the close of the Revolutionary War, immigration westward began with a rush. The great growth of the West took place in the Kentucky county which was widely favored for its fertility and was more easily reached. (Until 1792, when Kentucky became a state, it was a part of Virginia).

Immigrants came into Kentucky by two routes—the Ohio River and Boone's old Wilderness Trail. In 1775 Boone and thirty others cleared a trail from the Holston River in North Carolina to the Kentucky River. It was a chopped out narrow bridle path over Cumberland Gap, across the Cumberland, Laurel, and Rockcastle Rivers, through tall open timber marked by blazes on the tree trunks, a path cut through underbrush, dense canebrake, and beds of reeds.

The people who traveled by the Wilderness Trail went on foot and by horse back with laden pack trains, often with herds and flocks. Families from the same neighborhood often journeyed together for companionship and mutual protection. The trail was bad and the trip was made with much fatigue and exposure. The time required to make the journey from Maryland to Kentucky might be four or five weeks. Bishop Asbury of the M. E. Church made a trip from Virginia to Kentucky. He records: "Our way was over rivers, sandy creeks, thick mountains, steep hills, deep growth of reeds for miles together and no inhabitants but wild beast and savage men".

The human flood that surged into Kentucky in 1793-1794 bore on its crest the family of Thomas and Margaret Current from the west shore of Maryland. The Current family settled about a mile and half from Hopewell, that was first charted as a town in 1789 by the Virginia Legislature.

A larger part of this land was pre-empted by John Reed of Maryland, together with William Galloway and Samuel Lyons. Reed came as early as 1776 and, it is thought he built his cabin now embraced in the grounds of the Bourbon County Club. In 1790, by a second act of the Virginia Legislature, Hopewell was changed to Paris. In the tax list at Frankfort, Kentucky, 1797 Thomas Current 350 acres of land on Stoner Creek, bought of Thompson. His cabin was on the farm stated by Frank P. Kiser 1957 (a g. g. g. g. son). It has been owned by a descendant for over 160 years. It lies on Lagrig Lane between Ruddles Mill and Fox pikes. According to family tradition, Thomas Current emigrated from Scotland. All records speak of his coming to Kentucky from the west shore of Maryland. It is hoped that patient research will find his ancestors. In New Hope Churchyard, on the stones marking their resting place Thomas Current b. 1760 d. July 19, 1838 in 78 years of his age. Margaret b. February 24, 1756 d. July 29, 1836.

St. Giload, at first called Mathew's Meeting House built by the Methodist on the road between Paris and Millersburg, (C. K. Thomas owns the farm 1957). It is thought to have been the first church building erected in the county. It was probably built prior to 1790. The church was destroyed by fire and the records lost.

They were a strict sect, opposed to slavery, and conspicuous dress. The men wore coats without collars, buttoned close to the neck. The women dressed in Puritan simplicity. The story is told of one of the members, Miss Loper, who went to church on Sunday wearing a "Bombazine bonnet" artistically quilted and as lovely as a "Bombazine bonnet" could be. The minister, fearful of such vanity, snatched it from her head, threw it on the ground, and administered a rebuke, asking for Divine forgiveness for another Eve, still mindful of frivolities and fig leaves. As Thomas Current, was a member of the strict religious sect, right account for not finding a Revolutionary record for him.

The records in this phamplet are taken from Bourbon Court, Bibles, Mt. Gilead M. B. and Stoner Mouth burial grounds, William Henry Perrin's History of Bourbon Scott, Harrison and Nicholas Counties published 1882-p-41-88-473-474-551-577-579-650. Invaluable help has been given by W. R. McEarm, Hopewell, Virginia, Mrs. W. R. Cason, Cynthiana, Kentucky, and the late Mrs. Bettie Smith Skillman, Paris, Kentucky and all others that contributed data of lesser amounts.

Thomas and Margaret Current, report has it, had twelve children, but only ten are named in 1927 when Thomas deeded properties to his children, presumming two died young.

Ruddles Mills, lies four and half miles northeast of Paris, on the principal stream of Hinkston and Stoner, which form one of the important branches of the Licking River. It is historically the richest precinct in the county. Isaac Ruddle, from whom it takes its name, was the first white settler, a native of Virginia, who built his cabin in 1776. He made a settlement three miles below the present site of Ruddles Mills, near the present Harrison County line, in 1779. The settlement together with the Martin's Fort was taken by Col. Boyd of the British Army and his Indian allies in June 1780. Isaac Ruddle was a thrifty landowner, interested in husbandry, especially his excellent orchard. Later when the question came up of locating the county seat for Bourbon, Ruddles Mills seemed the logical place Mrs. Ruddle objected, saying, "Boys living in a town would be so bad and would rob my orchard". So Paris was the second choice. In the early days, there were cotton and woolen mills, owing to splendid water facilities offered.

There were several cabinet makers that made lovely pieces, Duncan Tavern, Paris Kentucky, the D. A. R. Shrine has a beautiful sideboard. ( I have a large mahogany and cherry one, P. C. E.), and others have pieces made by these gifted artisans that have been handed down for generations and are highly prized.

Isaac and Batezy Ruddle, d. 1808 are buried in the old Presbyterian graveyard which he donated for burial purposes. Adjoining the graveyard stood one of the first churches in the county—"Stoner Mouth Church". Back of the first Methodist Church built in 1820 is another graveyard; here many of Thomas and Margaret Current's descendants are buried. It is to this historically village that their eldest son, John, b. 1780 in Maryland and Elizabeth Amos, b. 1790 in Kentucky raised their families.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the origin of life. It is shown that the problem is one of the most important and most difficult in the history of science. It is a problem which has attracted the attention of philosophers, scientists, and the general public alike. The problem is one of the most important and most difficult in the history of science. It is a problem which has attracted the attention of philosophers, scientists, and the general public alike.

2. The second part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of life. It is shown that these theories are of two main types: theistic and atheistic. The theistic theories are based on the belief in the existence of a God who created life. The atheistic theories are based on the belief that life arose from non-living matter through a process of natural selection.

3. The third part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the evidence which has been adduced in support of the various theories. It is shown that the evidence is of two main types: direct and indirect. Direct evidence is evidence which is based on the observation of living organisms. Indirect evidence is evidence which is based on the study of the fossil record and the results of experiments in the laboratory.

4. The fourth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the conclusions which can be drawn from the evidence. It is shown that the evidence is inconclusive. It does not support any one theory in particular. It is a problem which remains one of the most important and most difficult in the history of science.

5. The fifth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the philosophical implications of the problem of the origin of life. It is shown that the problem is one of the most important and most difficult in the history of philosophy. It is a problem which has attracted the attention of philosophers, scientists, and the general public alike.

6. The sixth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the historical development of the problem of the origin of life. It is shown that the problem has been one of the most important and most difficult in the history of science. It is a problem which has attracted the attention of philosophers, scientists, and the general public alike.

7. The seventh part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the future of the problem of the origin of life. It is shown that the problem is one of the most important and most difficult in the history of science. It is a problem which has attracted the attention of philosophers, scientists, and the general public alike.

8. The eighth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the various theories which have been advanced to explain the origin of life. It is shown that these theories are of two main types: theistic and atheistic. The theistic theories are based on the belief in the existence of a God who created life. The atheistic theories are based on the belief that life arose from non-living matter through a process of natural selection.

9. The ninth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the evidence which has been adduced in support of the various theories. It is shown that the evidence is of two main types: direct and indirect. Direct evidence is evidence which is based on the observation of living organisms. Indirect evidence is evidence which is based on the study of the fossil record and the results of experiments in the laboratory.

10. The tenth part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the conclusions which can be drawn from the evidence. It is shown that the evidence is inconclusive. It does not support any one theory in particular. It is a problem which remains one of the most important and most difficult in the history of science.

THE HISTORY OF THE
CITY OF BOSTON

From its first settlement in 1630 to the present time, the city of Boston has been a center of commerce, industry, and culture. Its history is marked by significant events, including the founding of the city, the American Revolution, and the growth of its economy. The city has played a vital role in the development of the United States, and its influence is felt throughout the world. The history of Boston is a testament to the resilience and spirit of its people, who have overcome many challenges and built a city of great achievement. The city's rich heritage is preserved in its many historical landmarks, museums, and archives, which provide a window into the past and a source of inspiration for the future. The history of Boston is a story of progress, innovation, and the pursuit of a better life, and it is a story that continues to inspire and motivate people around the world.

6. WILLIAM NASH PAYNE (Carl David-5, America E.-4 Current, Thomas Jr.-3, John-2, Thomas Sr.-1) b. September 26, 1919, served in World War II, m. May 23, 1946,

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem of the existence of solutions of the system of equations

$$\frac{dx}{dt} = f(x, y, z), \quad \frac{dy}{dt} = g(x, y, z), \quad \frac{dz}{dt} = h(x, y, z),$$ where  $f, g, h$  are continuous functions of  $x, y, z$  in a certain domain  $D$  of the three-dimensional space.

2. In the second part we consider the case when

$$f(x, y, z) = P(x, y, z), \quad g(x, y, z) = Q(x, y, z), \quad h(x, y, z) = R(x, y, z),$$ where  $P, Q, R$  are polynomials of the first degree in  $x, y, z$ .

3. In the third part we consider the case when

$$f(x, y, z) = \frac{P(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad g(x, y, z) = \frac{R(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad h(x, y, z) = \frac{S(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)},$$

where  $P, Q, R, S$  are polynomials of the first degree in  $x, y, z$ .

4. In the fourth part we consider the case when

$$f(x, y, z) = \frac{P(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad g(x, y, z) = \frac{R(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad h(x, y, z) = \frac{S(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)},$$

where  $P, Q, R, S$  are polynomials of the first degree in  $x, y, z$ .

5. In the fifth part we consider the case when

$$f(x, y, z) = \frac{P(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad g(x, y, z) = \frac{R(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad h(x, y, z) = \frac{S(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)},$$

where  $P, Q, R, S$  are polynomials of the first degree in  $x, y, z$ .

6. In the sixth part we consider the case when

$$f(x, y, z) = \frac{P(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad g(x, y, z) = \frac{R(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad h(x, y, z) = \frac{S(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)},$$

where  $P, Q, R, S$  are polynomials of the first degree in  $x, y, z$ .

7. In the seventh part we consider the case when

$$f(x, y, z) = \frac{P(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad g(x, y, z) = \frac{R(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)}, \quad h(x, y, z) = \frac{S(x, y, z)}{Q(x, y, z)},$$

The first of these is the fact that the system is not self-sufficient. It requires a constant supply of raw materials and energy. This is a major problem for the system
 as a whole. The second problem is the fact that the system is not flexible. It is unable to adapt to changing circumstances. This is a major problem for
 the system as a whole.
 The third problem is
 the fact that the system is not secure. It is vulnerable to attack from within and without. This is a major problem for
 the system as a whole.
 The fourth problem is
 the fact that the system is not sustainable. It cannot continue to exist indefinitely. This is a major problem for the
 system as a whole.
 The fifth problem is
 the fact that the system is not equitable. It does not distribute resources fairly. This is a major problem for
 the system as a whole.
 The sixth problem is
 the fact that the system is not efficient. It wastes resources. This is a major problem for
 the system as a whole.
 The seventh problem
 is the fact that the system is not innovative.
 It does not produce
 new ideas. This is a major problem for the
 system as a whole.
 The eighth problem
 is the fact that the system is not resilient.
 It cannot recover from shocks. This is a major problem for the system
 as a whole.
 The ninth problem is
 the fact that the system
 is not transparent.
 It does not allow for public scrutiny. This is a major problem for
 the system as a whole.
 The tenth problem is
 the fact that the system
 is not accountable.
 It does not answer to the people. This is a major problem for the
 system as a whole.
